

The circuit from the P.O.C to the dolmen

Vallée de la Vézère – massif des Monédières – Espartignac

(A. Blanchet - Office de tourisme Terres de Corrèze)

From Avenue du Général de Gaulle (main road) in Uzerche, take the D920 for about 500m in the direction of Tulle, then turn left on the D142 towards Espartignac.

Walk along the route followed by the little train, the "Paris-Orléans-Corrèze" affectionately called "Le Transcailladou". You will be able to see the remains of the castle mound of Château l'Abbaye, and the small path will naturally lead you to the Maison du Loup, set on a rocky spur overlooking the metal road in a meander of the Vézère.

Prometheus (A)

The sculpture, Prometheus, by Viorel Enache, created in 2005 on the theme of fire. Prometheus, who stole fire to give it to men, is chained to a rock and an eagle comes continually to devour his liver. Prometheus, the one who foresees, the creator of man, whom he models from clay, embodies pride, sacrilege against the Olympian gods or, on the contrary, creative intelligence and even the spirit of rebellion and freedom.

P.O.C track (B)

You will follow part of the old P.O.C. (Paris-Orléans-Corrèze) railway line serving, among other places, Espartignac station. It was in service from 1904 to the early 1970s. This railway made it possible to open up small communities in Corrèze, as well as to transport goods linked to the economic activity of the department such as agricultural products (fruit, livestock) and in particular the transport of the famous "caillades" cheeses which give the line the nickname "Transcailladou".

Saint-Martial Fountain (D)

According to oral tradition, the fountain of Saint-Martial sprang from the stick carried by St Martial. This Saint went from Tulle to Uzerche and met a woman in Espartignac carrying water drawn from above. Saint-Martial is said to have asked her for some of her water to quench his thirst, but she continued on her way, ignoring him. The disgruntled travelling saint hit the ground with his stick where a spring gushes out to this day. This fountain is said to have been known to cure scabies.

The dolmen or "house of the wolf" and the metal route (G)

On a rocky ridge, a shelter has been built, known as the "House of the Wolf". This shelter is, in fact, a former ford crossing post on the precious metals route, mistakenly interpreted as a dolmen. The Metals Route was a very ancient route, from well before the Roman occupation, that linked Armorica to the Mediterranean and allowed trade, particularly in gold and precious stones, but also in wine and slaves.
