St Pardoux les Cards Cemetery (A)

The portal is surmounted by two veiled funeral urns. The funerary urn is a tradition that dates back to Antiquity where the ashes of the deceased were collected in a container ranging from a simple terracotta vase to a solid gold object. The veil can symbolise sadness or mourning. It also bears an unusual title - Equality- which appeals to the passer-by.

Villemonteix Château (B)

An archetype of the late Middle Ages with its central keep, parapet and pepperpot towers, Villemonteix Château is also elegant as a result of the discreet modifications made in the 18th century. Among its treasures are an exceptional double Pleyel by Béatrice de Camondo and a rich collection of tapestries (Aubusson, Felletin, Flandres, Beauvais, Gobelins)

Coudoursoux Wood (C)

In patois, Coudoursoux means the small dry branch of a tree or bare stem of a plant;
by derivation, the word refers to a skinny person. The wood of Coudoursoux is composed of various species that contribute to biodiversity.
